AFFORDANCE

You can see that there are many buttons that look like each other and may serve a similar function. The “Proceed to video” button actually redirects the user to an external spam page. The “Play now” and “Download” buttons are not buttons, but actually one click-able image that redirects the user to an advertisement as well. The only button on this page that serves the proper function is clicking the link for the episode name. This website could do a much better job of clear navigation.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the address bar displaying 'watchseries.ag/serie/office'. The website has a blue header with the title 'Watch The Office Online'. Below the header, there is a section for the show's details, including a release year of 2005, genre of Comedy, and a list of episodes. A large blue button labeled 'Proceed to Video' is prominently displayed in the center. To the right of the main content area, there are two buttons: 'Play now' and 'Download'. Below the main content area, there are several smaller buttons: 'Follow', '(Un)Mark As Watched', 'Add To Fav', and 'Add Link'. At the bottom, there are two lists of episodes, one for Season 1 and one for Season 2. A yellow dialog box is overlaid on the bottom right, stating 'This content requires Java Update 13.6. Would you like to update it now?' with 'Install' and 'Continue' buttons.

Lions are very social cats and live in groups called prides. Asiatic and African lion prides are very different, though.

African lion prides consist of up to three males, around a dozen females, and their young, according to National Geographic. There are prides that have as many as 40 members, though.

Asian lions divide themselves into two prides. The females have a pride and the males have a pride. They only come together during mating season.

With both types of lion prides, the females stay put. All of the females in a pride are usually related to each other because females tend to stay with the pride in which they are born. Males, on the other hand, wander off to create their own pride when they are old enough.

Offspring

At 3 to 4 years old, males and females are ready to mate. The female has a gestation period of around four months. She will give birth to her young away from others and hide the cubs for the first six weeks of their lives. At birth, the cubs are only around 3 lbs. (1.5 kg). They are

The world is still reeling from the sudden death of Cory Monteith at just 31. But with his hit show, Glee, scheduled to start filming next week, the folks at Fox are already debating the big questions: what happens to Cory's character, Finn Hudson, in season 5?

What will Glee look like without Cory Monteith? For that matter, will the Glee premiere in September even happen?

Already that last question is looking doubtful.

Scott Creek Glory Bea

In Retirement
Scott Creek Glory Bea is a leopard appy mare and has produced some awesome foals. One of her little fillies became the Austrailian National Champion mare. "Aunt Bea" will "babysit" the other mares foals. She takes good care of the little weanlings. She usualy has a crowd of little ones around her. This mare will not be having any more foals as she is 27 years old. She is looking for a Retirement home to the right person. Great pesonality. Loves being the yard pet.
